VERMILION.

In Monday night, a large meeting of gentlemen, was held in the Presbyterian church, and a motion was carried to send a unanimous call to the Rev. Mr. Wilson, the present incumbent.

F. J. Black, of Winchester, is here with two cars of his famous shorners' head. There are a beautiful bunch, and will be a valuable acquisition to the district. Mr. Black will probably deposit the crops along very rapidly, and have more report promising conditions everywhere.

Messrs. McInnis and Carmichael have finished burning their land, and have turned their stock out north.

From Day to Day

One of Many.
Nore sought for beauty in that rugged life form revealed no subtle lines of grace.

But in the quiet of her fearless look One read the life, as in an open book.

Sorrow had walked with her; she shined despite.
Love drew the poison from her storm of care.

Close drew the staff of strength the help- less clung.
While little bells of Hope about them rung.

A lovely woman, on Life's common street,
Where mortals go, who never pause to greet.

She has no record in the Hall of fame,
But lips glow tender as they speak her name.

—Charlotte Melan Packard.

The wedding takes place in Hamilton on Wednesday, September 11.

Edmund Morris, F.R.C.A., a son of the late Governor Morris, of Montreal, is in the west on a special mission, painting a number of Indian heads. He has secured some fine Blackfoot types.

Whyte-Blair.

The marriage of William Whyte, Jr., of Macquarie Blair, son of daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Blair, which took place in Winnipeg recently, was one of the most brilliant wedding ever celebrated in the Manitoba capital. Rev. Mr. Heald performed the ceremony. The bride wore a very beautiful gown of white satin, made en princess, the front being formed of a panel of exquisite lace worked by her mother.

Her tulle veil was caught in place with a cluster of white flowers, and she carried a slender bouquet of these dainty flowers with bridal roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Hazel Spencer (Chicago) and Miss Gladys White, who shimmered in gowns of yellow satin, with white picture hats, and bouquets of marguerites. After the wedding reception was held at "Kensington," the residence of the bride's parents, the young couple left by the afternoon train on Mr. William Whyte's private car for a honeymoon trip through the Rockies.

TWO GREAT ARTISTS DEAD

Grig and Mansfield—two great names in the allied arts of music and drama—have died since the month ends. Edward Grig's wistfully beautiful compositions have their place.

TO GET REINDEER FOR LABRADOR

A New Movement Organized in Connection With Dr. Grenfell's Deep Sea Mission.

Montreal, Sept. 2.—Stirred up by the success of the Rev. Sheldon Jackson in the introduction of reindeer in Alaska Dr. Grenfell, C.M.G., head of the Deep Sea Mission to Labrador, has been at work promoting a new great philanthropic movement. He has not only been writing constantly on the subject, but he has traveled and spoken about it in the United States and Canada. Through the whole vast peninsula of Labrador, both white men and aboriginal Indians have only one domestic animal, the Reindeer. It is only used as a transport in winter. Years of training have made this savage beast into an admirable sled dog, capable of performing marvelous journeys. All the time, however, he has remained a wild animal, so savage as to kill.

A movement is on foot to furnish for the Reindeer a domestic animal, a domestic animal like the Lapland reindeer which

He was a man of great character and with a wide appeal to the multitude. Tchaikovsky's "wonderful beautiful music has successfully rivaled Grieg's music. It is said, in the presence of the great composer, who was written for time though, and the possession of their haunting suggestion of trouble and stress and the music of the wind plays about snow-capped Scandinavian peaks. . . .

The other man whom the whole artistic world mourns is Richard Mansfield, who at some period or other in his career was the greatest actor of his time, and of the present generation. Of him the dramatic critic of the Montreal Herald has recently written a most sympathetic article, reprinted here in full.

There is no man at present acting on the American stage who has been so intimately bound up with the future of American drama, so far as its evolution is concerned, as he. His profound ability he gave freely and fully, never sparing himself in his efforts to lay only his best before the public. He was a man singularly devoted to art, a man who was not a little intensely of purpose; and this quality, in the hearts of many who knew him and his work intimately, stood for many minor faults.

"Held To His Ideals." "Too few men has it been given to grasp such a prominent place in the annals of the drama, and when one remembers that he made his own rules, laid down his own line of action, took his own way and stuck to it, even when it meant the sacrifice of his own ideal, through his whole dramatic career, one is compelled to admire the indomitable determination of his will, and the force of his personality which enabled him to stand in the face of a man's talent triumphing over personal disqualification.

he carried across the Atlantic. Mr. Wood lost through the influence of Nansen, the king of Norway and the Foreign office the very best animals; £25 are done and thirty bucks. About twenty-five are thoroughly trained along private journeys. The best and most intelligent Lapland herdsmen, with a Norwegian interpreter, have been secured and all will be under the control of Nansen, through the experience he has gained in the business. The steamer will probably touch at Stettin or Ostre, or by way over, The herd will cost, with food, etc., about $1,000 ($2,000, the hire of the steamer $1,000, and a few hundred more for extra expenses—$1,500 in all.

For the future management of the herd at Labrador advantage will be taken of Sheldon Jackson's experience in Alaska. Settlers and Eskimos will be associated with the Lappe, and he taught how to manage the herd. To guard the animals against all possible attacks by wolves and the Eskimo dogs, every precaution will be taken. It will be made a condition that all dogs be destroyed around the place where the herd are located before distributing the same reindeer amongst the Eskimos. The dogs are also guarded by the Lap herdsmen and their trained dogs. The caribou, or reindeer, the herds are fighting animals, and can strike force blows with their horns and hoofs. They would be quite a match for their savage associates. It is anticipated that the Eskimo and reindeer will soon have how to take the immense advantages of securing such valuable domestic animals, valuable alike for food, clothing and travel. The advent of a reindeer will change the whole condition of their miserable lives on this dreary peninsula.

DOWN FROM FORT REGULATION.

Mrs. Harding, wife of the Hudson's Bay company's factor at Fort Regulation, is in the city, the guest of Mrs. Brimble, Sixth street. She was one of the party that came out recently on the steamer "Midnight Sun," and on her way to Winnipeg to visit her mother.

At Fort Regulation, which is situated at the mouth end of Great Slave lake, the population consists of the missionaries and teachers, the Indians are at the post and Indians, with the few occasional fur traders and the rare visits of explorers and scientific men to break the monotony. The mail comes four times a year and is now controlled by the government in place of the former monopoly by Hudson's Bay company.

As at other points in the north, Mrs. Harding says that the dry, cool climate at Regulation is particularly healthful. There are frequent epidemics of grippe among the Indians, however, and these for lack of medical attendance, proper nourishment and nursing, are quite disastrous to them.

Notwithstanding the apparent drawbacks to a life so far removed from civilization, Mrs. Harding states that it is a pleasant and fascinating life, and that she draws people back to it after they have once come to see the place.

Mrs. Harding will remain a few days longer in the city and then resume her trip to Winnipeg.
